

64P Contracting

The Department of the Air Force awarded a nearly $1.2 billion contract for its first lot of eight F-15EX fighter aircraft, July 13, 2020.

Airmen from the 378th Expeditionary Contracting Squadron provide support to Prince Sultan Air Base, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. The 378th ECONS supports the warfighter, base operations, and host nation local business relations by securing equipment purchases and creating worker contracts for the base.

Who We Are

Mission-Focused Business Leaders

“As Mission-Focused Business Leaders, we are Airmen and Guardians, we are innovators, we are masters of our craft! We do not hide behind the Federal Acquisition Regulation, we make it “sing” to drive mission results for Commanders and Program Executive Officers alike. We are experts in contracting and students of the missions we support.”

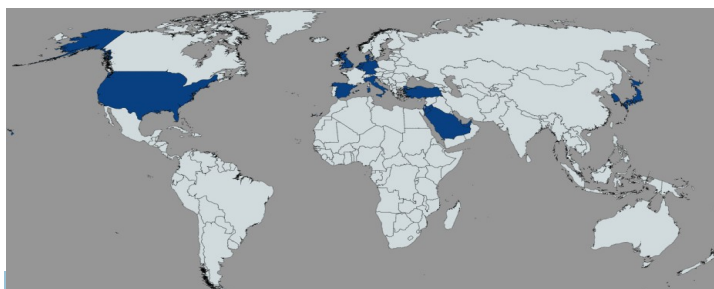

Major General Cameron Holt
Deputy Assistant Secretary (Contracting)
Assistant Secretary of the Air Force

What We Do

When the Air Force, Space Force, and Joint partners need something we do not have, we are the mission-focused business leaders who figure out how to get it, no matter the size, complexity, or dollar value. We are force multipliers both home and abroad and have a footprint at almost every Air Force base in the world. Whether supporting a flying mission at a wing, or supporting the design and purchase of our next stealth bomber, 64Ps provide critical business leadership and hold the responsibility of entering into contracts on behalf of the Department of the Air Force. We focus on staying relevant and up to date as mission requirements change, and help our teammates accomplish their objectives legally, morally, and ethically.

Where We Are

We have 64Ps all over the world and have a presence at every Air Force base.

Deployments

For nearly two decades, the Department of the Air Force has provided DoD’s preminent Expeditionary Contracting force.

- There are opportunities to deploy.
- From standing up a new base from scratch to purchasing critical requirements for the warfighter, we’re critical force multipliers no matter the AOR.
- Often support joint units, sister services, and special forces.
